“Richard and I were first cousins. Our parents were sisters: Pauline Stubblefield Green and Jewell Stubblefield Collins. Richard and I spent a lot of time together as kids during the summer. Some wonderful memories from those summers. I did not see him as often after we were grown. Richard had amazing ability in putting model cars together. I was always impressed. I did not have the patience or ability. We did communicate on occasion, and saw each other when I did come back to Stigler to visit my parents. I specifically recall visiting when his daughter, Darla, was a baby. Our times will always be fondly remembered. I did visit his mom and dad often when I was in town. The loss of Richard has been unsettling. I am sure it is excruciating for the immediate family. My condolences to them.”
